Bachelor-Hardin Wedding Read At Trinity Church

REV. LAWRENCE A. WOOD, pastor, read the double ring wedding ceremony which united in marriage Miss Evelyn Bachelor and Vance Hardin Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Trinity Baptist church.

Palms and ferns formed a background for the vases and baskets of roses and garden blooms which decorated the altar. Two large white swicker baskets filled with white hydrangea, feverfew and Shasta daisies stood at either side of the pulpit, and centering the altar at the back of the pulpit was a large Japanese vase filled with Dorothy Perkins roses. Complementing the arrangement were small brass containers holding smaller bouquets of Dr. Van Fleet roses. Ferns covered the altar railing and ferns and palms flanked the choir loft where baskets filled with Dorothy Perkins roses gave a touch of contrasting coloring. The altar was lighted with six six-branched candles.

Brother Givens bride, Evelyn, lovely in heavy ivory satin and a long beaded veil, advanced to the altar on the arm of her brother, Perry Bachelor, who gave her in marriage. The elite lines of the dress were accentuated by the long graceful train, outlined by a pleated edging of the satin. The jacket which covered the front bodice of the dress, closed high at the throat with a suggestion of a rowl neckline in front and fastened with tiny buttons down the back. The long sleeves which ended in points over her hands, repeated the button trimming from the elbow to the tip of the point. A wreath of orange blossoms held the French net veil far back on her hair. She carried white roses and lily-of-the-valley in an arm bouquet.

Mrs. Harold Quigley of Akron, roommate of the bride at Denison university, was mistress of honor, and the bride's niece, little Miss Jean Marie Bachelor, was flower girl.

Mrs. Quigley wore a floor-length gown of pink lace with a turban of the same shade trimmed with a white nosegay. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of white and green and pink painted daisies, tied with green ribbon. The flower girl wore a shepherdess frock of pale green organza, a double ruche of the material almost touching the floor. A pink satin sash marked the high waistline and in her hair she wore a large pink satin bow. The bride's gift to her mistress of honor was a bracelet of rhinestones set in pink enamel, and to her flower girl a locket.

Joseph Keefe Jr. of Bucyrus attended Mr. Hardin as best man. George Hardin, brother of the bridegroom, served as head usher and lighted the candles. The other ushers were Howard Hoffman of Lima, Dr. Richard E. Fisher and Robert Emphreth.

Musical

Miss Grace Purser, organist for the wedding, and George Wingert, tenor and violinist, gave a 20-minute recital of wedding music preceding the Vesper wedding march which marked the approach of the bride party. Miss Vesper played "Wedding Day's Duple" (Satie) and "The Rose Tree" (Liszt). The organ sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond). Immediately preceding the wedding music, Mrs. Purser played "Oh, the Little Springtime" (Steubert) and during the ceremony played "The Love's the Sweet Song" (Meyer) and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" (Berlioz). The recessional was the Mendelssohn march.

Mrs. E. H. Hardin, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gray and red dress flowered with a white picture and white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses.

A reception for 15 guests was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hardin of 343 East Church street. The house was decorated with garden flowers. A three-course wedding dinner was served at the 11:15 o'clock. Tapers flanked the table which was decorated with

Married Comrades

BY ADLE GARRISON

After another adaptation of Tom Sawyer underlining the "leper," the father married them, then faded the girls and gave them back to the world.

I should presume these care-free boys are advised. "The two boys are happy living their lives over 10 years from now."

"Keep them safe, never fear," the father said, with a realization that I must not prolong this in-between, precarious as the moments were. I rose abruptly.

"I must go and see to the boys now," I said. "They have been waiting for you, under the impression of course, that the father was because of their trip. But they are not coming until they are ready for bed. It will be a pajama party and slipper call, for I want them to get into bed soon after they have seen you. I want them sound asleep before you leave."

Future Co-Eds Are Dance Guests At Country Club

A LOVELY social event of the early summer was the dance at which the Marion Pan-Hellenic association members were hostesses Saturday evening at the Marion Country club. Guests included a number of young women who are planning to leave this fall for college.

Baskets of var-colored garden flowers decorated the lounge where 100 couples danced from 8 to 1 o'clock, to a program played by Paul Wheeler's orchestra.

Mrs. E. Paul Bachman was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dance. She was assisted by Mrs. Marie Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Artz, Mrs. John K. Rastman, Mrs. Frank Foster, Mrs. Howard Geer, Mrs. Wendell Wiant and Miss Martha Tschannen.

Another social event of the association's calendar will be a tea at which the members will be hostesses in September for the pleasure of a group of young women entering college.

Air mail services are being extended throughout Central Ohio and highways, railway and telephone construction increased.

I thanked my stars that I had salvaged the list Junior had torn up and had preferred the other one, as I took them from my handbag and held them out to him. And his genuine, hearty laughter a minute later, as he perused the "list of livestock owned by Richard Grabhorn II and Frederick Harrison I," told me that I had made no mistake in bringing the lists to him for a final faithful thread in the sweater web of his departure.

"They missed no possible item," he said. "But what character they showed in giving them up at your behest! Richard told me how beautifully you managed them."

I stared at him in amazement which turned to affectionate tenderness as I realized what my husband had done.

Was Dicky's Work

"Why! Father?" I said. "I had nothing to do with their decision. Indeed I expected a long and nerve-racking argument, but Dicky, with one master stroke, solved the problem beautifully. Isn't that like him, to say nothing of his own strategy and to give me all the credit?"

"Very like him," my father agreed. "But tell me just what he did. It must have been something unusually clever."

"It was," I answered, and told him briefly how Dicky had adroitly let the boys know that he wanted extra guards at the camp, but could not consider them because their whole time would be taken up with their toys and pets.

"You should have seen them, father," I said. "The words were hardly out of Dicky's mouth before they were staging a great renou-
